A native of Ireland, Joseph Murphy (1898 - 1981) was a prolific and widely admired New Thought minister and writer, best known for his motivational classic, The Power of Your Subconscious Mind, an international bestseller since it first blazed onto the self-help scene. His pamphlet How to Attract Money first appeared in 1955, and likewise entered many editions. Murphy wrote widely on the auto-suggestive and metaphysical faculties of the human mind and is considered one of the pioneering voices of affirmative-thinking philosophy.

The Miracle of Mind Dynamics is a book that I read over and over again, just like the Bible. I found this book on while studying the subconscious. I began studying the subconscious because I began to notice things happening in my life that could only be explained by the subconscious. Wow, I can't believe this book was written in the 60's! It really helped me deal with some emotional, relationship and spiritual issues I was having in my life. The book helped me look at God, other people and myself in a better light! I no longer see God as judgmental or condemning, and of course he never was. When I have problems in my life I now look more at myself. I forgive easier. When I read the Bible I see more of what Jesus is saying. Now don't get me wrong I'm not perfect and other books have helped me along these same lines. Other people that do us wrong aren't so much evil as misdirected or ignorant to the truth and they should be viewed in that light. As far as my study of the subconscious, I found that my subconscious is just trying to work with me and help me in this life. No matter how evil it's actions appear to me or others. However, it's my job to direct or program it for only good purposes. I plan to read all of Joseph Murphy's books. I had previously read "The Power of your Subconscious mind" by Dr. Murphy (which is also a good book) but "The Miracle of Mind Dynamics" added some other element that I don't think I received from "The Power of your Subconscious mind". Maybe its like lifting weights. I find that when I work a muscle from every angle, I get more growth.

This is an old book and I'm surprised it is still in print. But don't let that bother you. This is a wonderful book. Easy to read and easy to understand, and easy to put into practice. One step at a time. It's easy to see that the modern gurus have borrowed heavily from Dr Murphy. Why not go directly to the source?

I have found Dr. Murphy's books in a time of great personal turmoil, in a condition that was a karmic backlash of actions that were the result of confusion and lack of insight in the workings of life, and its creative energy. The second time I recurred to scientific prayer in my life, was again when I was passing through a major period of transformation that was putting my life on a more spiritual foundation, without giving a fancy meaning to that term. In fact, at that time in my life, I was simply putting words on things, rendering conscious my longings for partnership, instead of complaining about my loneliness. I was learning to see and emphasize the beauty of longing itself, its visionary quality. I then realized that once I felt better in my life and affairs, I had given up the prayer technique, but life was to tell me that I was again losing ground, and I suffered again financial losses. After a few months of practicing scientific creative prayer it was easy to drop smoking, and put my regime back to a pure vegetarian diet, and I was able to restrict wine and beer consumption to occasional glasses that accompanied a meal. Why had it been so easy to get back to normal? I think there are two reasons. The first reason is that I had already embraced that condition earlier on in my life, so the pattern was already familiar to me, as a matter of what Rupert Sheldrake calls morphic resonance. Second, I knew from my earlier studies on prayer that it's all about belief and accepting or not accepting certain conditions. First of all, I had learnt to say a decisive no to conditions I found are damaging my health and wellbeing, or conditions that put me in danger and thus invoke constant fear. So I said no to being fat, immobile and short-breathed, and I said no to bringing danger to my life and my brain through alcoholism. Next, I pondered what I had been thinking, predominantly, all through these years? I had been thinking virtually every day that I was not a published author, that all my writings were just manuscripts, that I had got but refusals from publishers and that I wanted to be published. Working on publishing my writings, music, art and photography, I was repeating these thoughts in my mind, on a daily basis. What was it that I had believed? I believed that I had to work hard, so hard that I was actually ten hours behind two huge computer monitors every day, while I was not making a cent from all the work I did. I did it for expressing myself, in the belief if I was only working hard enough success would come by itself. Nope, it didn't. After ten years of unwavering efforts I had a range of brilliant web sites that went for the most part unnoticed, and nobody cared about my design, and the content of my many books. Over the next decade or so, I was in what seemed a negative growth cycle in that I lost money instead of making it, through a lack of business knowledge, on one hand, and through suffering betrayal, on the other. As a result, I had built strong resentment which triggered negative self-talk and hateful feelings toward the world and others. I lost many friends during that time. And I thought why me, and why is that possible at all? I knew that the cause of my ailments was too much immobility in my thoughts and action, too much of a stationary spirit and attitude, and not enough moving and flowing with life. To put it in a word: resistance. I had resisted the welcome change by putting pressure upon myself, and by stressing achievement over creation, instead of just creating more, with a carefree and joyful attitude. Instead of throwing myself again into depression and despair, I had developed a new attitude, and I had developed it because of the prayers. I simply unpublished all of the books and changed my basic attitude behind publishing. Once of a sudden, I became aware that the basic intention behind my efforts was one of being recognized as a published author, as some sort of personal glory. I then realized that this was not what my soul wanted. I imagined myself to be on my death bed and looked back at my life in retrospection, and the result was dumbfounding me. I realized that what I really wanted was to share my knowledge, even for free, and without any credit for myself. This new insight virtually poured streams of happiness into me that I had never known in my life before. I expressed to the universe my gratitude to have had this fundamental insight not on my death bed but when I had still time enough to change course and start all over again. I became acutely aware that my selfish beliefs and attitude were behind my failure in publishing my creations. Hence, I realized that the intention behind our actions really is essential for giving us a feeling of success and reward. My retrospection has shown me that death is not an end to anything that is based upon our genuine creativeness, and that life is given to us as a free gift we should use not only for our own glory, but for sharing our gifts and talents with others in a natural, carefree and joyful manner. As uncanny as it sounds, death had taught me how to live, and how to live happily and with a feeling of being blessed. As Murphy states in this book: "It is impossible that anything so universal as death should ever be looked upon as evil. It must be good or it would not be."

Great Book. Great Messages!! So grateful that I happened upon his teachings. It's not just bunk. You are the master of your own life and your thoughts and actions are what determines how your life plays out. It's empowering to get that and start having the life you want, or at least moving towards it, instead of just letting life happen to you.

This is one of the best books I have ever read. Clear and simple; gives the reader confidence in himself or herself that it is possible to achieve their goal in life. Whatever man wants, it can be achieved through the direction in this book on how to live an abundant life. Texts from the Bible gives peace to the mind, removing despair, anxieties, fears and hatred. Every failure in life is a stepping stone, and we were born to be winners and conquerors. You will never regret the day you bought this book.

Found an old one at a thrift store (new cost $3.45). I was so intrigued with this abundance of LIVING information that I decided to see if it was still in print. I have ordered many new books since. Some for gifts and others for several friends that I have shared with at a Bible study. I am now and plan to continue to read it slowly -like a devotional each day so I can digest it more. It is so true and what God says about us and our lives. Today we need Truth like never before. If you want Truth and a better life, read and follow this book. It is God's word in simple and do able terms. Our world is a mess and we need Truth. Great book.

Joseph Murphy books are spiritual eye openers. He puts our beliefs aka faith in proper perspective. He teaches much about the practice of prayer. Looking back over my life I see where spiritual laws were at work in ways I didn't understand. Things were not just happening haphazardly. There was a cause and effect.

Great Book
