Synopsis

For many years, respected gallerists Peter MacGill, Rudolf Kicken and Edwynn Houk have been collecting Aleksandr Rodchenko's photographs. This book is a curated selection of these images, most reproduced at their original sizes. The hallmarks of Rodchenko's inimitable Constructivist-influenced vision are here to see, regardless of whether he is photographing people, architecture or machinery--bold diagonals, abstract shapes and moving objects cutting through space.

Customer Reviews

It's very good, very well printed, but I would have liked something more complete, just because I'm very interested in Rodchenko. Anyway, I think he is very little known, and that's why there are so few books about him -at least in the West-. Still, a great purchase.

Everything perfect! Thanks from Argentina!
