Bahamas Bound And Back Again A Sailing Adventure

Synopsis

The crew: Larry and Tracy Lambert. The craft: Soulmatie, a 37ft Irwin Sloop The dream: Explore the Exumas and beyond. The mission: A great success! Come with us as we leave the safety and security of our land-based life and sail off into the sunset. Follow our dream and adventure as we discover new islands as we find those secluded beaches where the only footprints in the miles of soft, white sand are those leading us back to our boat. Explore those private coves that shelter us from the storms and provide the solitude we've been searching for. Mingle with the close friends we made along the way. And party in Georgetown at the infamous Pirate Bob Beach Party. Experience the thrill of catching your first Mahi or the peaceful sensations of sailing the open seas. And finally, feel the remorse we experienced as reality set in and we had to make the conscious decision to return to the real world. Experience life vicariously through our daily updates to family and friends, consolidated into a book for your enjoyment. Photos are provided for your viewing delight. This trip was the prelude to our new life at sea found as a kindle blog "Living the Dream - a Sailing Adventure" in the kindle store at <http://www..com/dp/b00cq9tq8k> Enjoy!

Customer Reviews

Good description of a sailing adventure I plan for myself. Should be edited for book format, reducing the 'string of emails'; and should be checked for spelling and grammar.

Great Read

So I've been to the Bahamas missed some of the places they visited and will be sure to visit them .the Bahamas are amazing especially when you get away from bimini would like to cross paths with these folks .Good book a little repetitious gotta find pizza stones svVeranda.
