Synopsis

Second chances can happen when you least expect them. Running a domestic violence shelter keeps Emma Stevens on her toes, and serves as a living reminder of her mother's legacy that falling in love can hurt you in more ways than one. But when one of her clients is murdered, Emma comes face to face with a detective who makes her question her resolve to remain safely unattached. Reeling from her wife's death, Nick Tanner fled her life as a homicide detective in the big city. But when a brutal murder rocks the police department in sleepy Battle Creek, she isn't prepared for the haunting memories, or complications, it brings - especially stubborn therapist Emma, who is determined to solve the case all by herself if she has to. But when Emma becomes the target for a killer, both their lives - and the love building between them - are put in danger. Is it better to love with the risk of losing, or not love at all?

Customer Reviews

Super well-written, great pace...outstanding suspense, well-edited...and, of course Nick and Emma were perfect for each other! Don't know how you do it, Noelle, but your writing is so darned pleasing to read...like putting on a comfortable pair of shoes , yet still having that rewarding scent of fresh newness. Keep 'em coming...can't wait for your next one!

I found this book to be well written, full of engaging moments. This book has great suspense with a little romance that blooms out of tragedy. The characters are very easy to get to know and like. You will find yourself scared for them like I was.... Nicole winter's is a rising star.. She has a great talent and her books are prime examples..

This book kept you guessing to figure out who done it right until the end. I liked the relationship between the women and how it developed.
