What a wonderful installment in Alexa Aston's Knights of Honor series! I thoroughly enjoyed this book, and highly recommend it to readers of this genre! I loved our Heroine, Lady Alys de Montfort - She is kind hearted, spirited, confident, and skilled in the healing arts. I appreciated the detail that the Author put into describing the way herbs were used for treating different ailments at that time! It was quite interesting. It added a great deal of depth to the character of Alys. Our Hero, Sir Christopher, 'Kit' Emory was a strong leading man, who was captivated from the very start by Alys. The story flows beautifully, and keeps the reader engaged, wondering how things would sort themselves out, so our couple could make it to a Happily Ever After! Five Stars for HEART OF HONOR! Don't miss reading this tender, poignant, and gripping story!

The book opens with Alys finding the man of her dreams, only to realize he is betrothed to the girl with whom she shares a room. Fast forward a few years, Kit and Alys meet again, only to have another tragedy, or is it? I enjoy a writer that allows her Heroines to be strong, self sufficient, and also sweet. This series continues that trend with Alys' story. She can protect herself with a sword, is a healer and is loved by the people that work for her parents. Kit has been a rake, but with his association with Alys, strives to always do the right thing-even when it isn't in his best interest. There are many twists in this story, which kept my interest until the end! This is a great addition to the series, with all of our favorites in attendance.

I have been waiting for Alys de Montfort's story ever since she first appeared in the Knights of Honor series, and when Ms. Aston announced this would be the next release, I was over the moon! And when it landed on my Kindle yesterday, I could not stop reading. It is everything I had hoped for and more! Let's say the late night was worth it and I think Kit Emory is my new book boyfriend. In Heart of Honor, we meet Sir Christopher Emory (who goes by Kit) and Lady Alys de Montfort in the royal court. Alys falls for the handsome young man, but was already betrothed to another. Time moves on, and when Kit's mother falls ill, he remembers Alys was a healer, one of supreme abilities, and decides to seek her help for his mother. It is when he goes to find her that Kit is put in jeopardy, as he is attacked and beaten while heading to her family home. When Alys discovers him, she has to use her healing powers to save a man she thinks is a stranger-until she realizes it's Kit. But Kit has no memory of his past, and as he heals, Alys faces some tough choices on the road ahead-including telling Kit his identity, even if it costs her the man she loves. The romance is beautiful, the plot moves fantastically, and once again, Ms. Aston weaves a wonderful story that sweeps you back to another time. Her attention to historical details always shines in her books, bringing the period to life on the page. And of course, I always fall in love with her characters and can't wait to see how their journey to love will end. Another perfect read from Ms. Aston!

Heart of Honor is the 5th book in the Knights of Honor series. This story is about Geoffrey and Merryn's oldest daughter, Alys and her journey of finding love with Kit Emory. I can't say enough about this series and this author. Alexa Aston has a way with telling a story.

Alexa Aston's Honor books are great!! I love reading books that you are introduced to certain characters and then you see them in the other books. It makes me feel like I am a part of the family. You will love reading about Kris and Alys story.

Loved Alys and Kit's story. This is a wonderful series that has continued with snippets about previous characters. I'm ready for Ancel's story. Oh, and what will Nan's story be? I'm ready for this series to continue with more love for these families

Another great book. Love this series and getting to know this family. Such a fabulous love story with it's share of suspense.
