Customer Reviews

"It may seem a strange time to be publishing the first guide devoted entirely to Sudan, but hardy travellers have long been discovering the wonders of Africa's largest country so this book is very welcome all the same. Despite the crisis in the currently inaccessible region of Darfur in the west of the country, the author optimistically includes it as well as creating a yearning to see the archaeological treasures of the ancient kingdom of Kush, explore the Imatong mountains, meet the bejewelled women of Kassala market and taste bush - a poor man's alternative to a bean stew."

The Observer, Feb 2005

While the crisis in the western region is devastating, the end to civil war in the south has inspired a spirit of optimism in Sudan. This is a land of delightful contrast, boasting desert caravans, lush river valleys and more pyramids than Egypt itself. It offers the intrepid visitor a fulfilling cultural experience in one of Africa's most hospitable countries. Paul Clammer shows in this, the first comprehensive guide to Sudan, that beyond troubled Darfur lies an extraordinary country, and a culture of kindness to strangers. Discover the archaeological riches of Kush and Nubia, scuba dive in the Red Sea, or relax on a Nile cruise through colorful Khartoum. Inside you will find information on:* Security, visas and border crossings* Where to stay and eat, and how to get around* Detailed coverage of culture and history* Sudan's civil war in context, and information for aid workers

I recently visited Sudan and somebody gave me this book. I only saw Khartoum, Omdurman and the ancient sites of Naqa and Meroe. However for these locations and for the general backgrounds on Sudan and the conflicts that still rage there the book gave excellent and very up to date backgrounds. It is practical on the ground, but after returning I decided to get a copy for myself as a reference book. There are just the minor details which will need a correction for the moment, like recently some new hotels opened. And the Greek-Orthodox church mentioned turned out to be a Coptic church, and apart from the Sufi zikr location mentioned in Omdurman, Khartoum's twin city, there are numerous other zikrs, but those perhaps should be kept secret for tourism. Amsterdam, Neil van der Linden
